And hey, we are about food too. You'll find a selection of superb cheeses throughout this publication, inspired accompaniments to your vinous choices. All of them are available from our Dida's Jervois Road and Victoria Park stores, or online at www.didas.co.nz where you can purchase them for delivery to anywhere in New Zealand.

CRAFT Beers

WE POP THE TOP ON NEW ZEALAND'S RAPIDLY FLOURISHING CRAFT BEER INDUSTRY AS EACH MONTH WE EXPLORE THE ARTISTS OF THE BEER WORLD

Deep Creek

Small batch, handcrafted, flavour fuelled. The Deep Creek mantra sums up the aspirations of two King Country boys, Jarred MacLachlan and Paul Brown, who took their obsession with beer on a world tour, travelling through the Czech Republic, Germany, Croatia, America and Australia in search of the brewer's art.

A return to these shores saw the landcruiser chucked out of the garage to make way for assorted chilly bins and tubing. Today, both the day jobs and the garage have been cast adrift, and it's full steam ahead bringing handcrafted brews to the masses from Deep Creek's brewery/eatery located in the heart of Auckland's Browns Bay village

The result of all this endeavour is an impressive selection of flavoursome, complex and individual beers that are brewed on site and delivered straight from the conditioning tanks behind the bar into the glasses of the waiting customers. Nice.

DEEP CREEK BREWING CO
LITTLE ARMOURD ONE
AMERICAN AMBER ALE 500mL

SINGLE $5.49 91872

Impressively amber-hued, this American-styled ale derives its distinctive aromas and flavours from the liberal use of Amarillo hops, delivering intense aromatics of flowers, spice and orange to embellish the malty characters. Fresh, balanced, with smoky caramel notes and a fine bitter edge to the finish.

HANCOCK & CO

The family owned Hancock & Co craft brewery shares a common vision with many of New Zealand's boutique wineries, driven as they are by a hunger for excellence and the desire to produce distinctly individual expressions of their craft.

The venture pays homage to one of our originals, Thomas Hancock, who began his brewing journey in Parnell in the mid-19th century. In 1859 Thomas purchased the Captain Cook Inn and created a craft brewery at the back of the property. Within three years his brews had become so popular that he was forced to expand the business.

In a true expression of the brewer's dedication, Hancock & Co have faithfully recreated both the names and stylings of Thomas Hancock's original brews, with each beer meticulously batch-brewed utilising a pure water source, carefully selected ingredients and loving attention to detail.

HANCOCK & CO
BISMARK
BROWN ALE 330mL

4-PACK $14.99 11142

Produced to capture the traditional brown ale styles of Northern England and the U.S. while retaining a distinctly New Zealand finish. Biscuit and caramel flavours prevail, with subtle notes of fennel and red apple providing their own distinct touches. The subtle malt-infused characters are balanced by a fresh bitterness at the finish.

CHEESE WITH THAT? SAINT-VERNIER

A soft, washed-rind cheese from France. Its flavour is delightfully fruity when the cheese is young. As it ages, it softens and fills out, developing delicate, sherry-like notes in the process. When fully ripe, it'll literally run onto your cracker. When matching food and wine, there are two general rules: like with like, or complete opposites. In this case, the former is the way to go, the ultra-fresh characters of Sauvignon Blanc mixing exceptionally well with the fruity notes of a young Saint-Vernier. The cheese's creamy richness is balanced by SB's high acidity.

Ossau-Iraty is a French, appellation-protected mountain cheese from the southern Pyrenees, one of only two ewe's milk cheeses granted AOC status. It has a wonderful texture and complex yet delicate flavours of almonds, hazelnuts and olives. Pinot Gris is known for its richness and mouthfeel, with florals, spice and stonefruit to the fore, its nutty-creamy notes a good match to the soft, delicacy of the cheese. Gris' underlying acidity also works well with the creamy nature of the Ossau-Iraty.

CHEESE WITH THAT? BRIE DE MEAUX

Brie de Meaux is a meatier style of brie; within the rind, the cheese itself is creamy with wild mushroom characters, a light fortified flavour and a smooth and runny texture. At home in France it's often matched with champagne. Being a richer, weightier cheese, Brie de Meaux also responds well to the flavours and characteristics of Chardonnay; like a good marriage, they bring out the best in each other.

CHEESE WITH THAT? TRIPLE CREAM BRIE

One of our top-sellers, Over the Moon's Triple Cream Brie is made from cow's milk and non-animal rennet. The additional cream gives the cheese more richness, and it requires a wine that can foot it with that; so your more savoury red wines make an excellent match, with their tannins cutting through the fat and enhancing the earthy characters of the cheese.

CHEESE WITH THAT? MANCHEGO

Manchego is a hard cheese from Spain, made from sheep's milk and sold at various stages of aging, with the younger Manchegos exhibiting fruity and nutty characters. A versatile cheese, it is great on a cheese board and versatile in cooking. With its fruity nature, Manchego loves a similarly fruity wine with a hint of something else; the spice of a Syrah/ Shiraz is perfect, as are the rustic notes of a French Pinot. A rich and heavy port would overpower it, but the 2009 Château Plince would work while still young, being from a hot, fruit-forward vintage.

When it comes to New Zealand Pinot Noir, Rockburn are legendary. They extend their already sky-scraping standards via their special release wines; when the fruit is exceptional and off their home vineyards, they do a special bottling and label it Twelve Barrels. When that fruit is sourced from one of their other connections, it falls under The Art moniker. We think it's a diligently honest approach, even rather brilliant. And the wine itself? As you'd expect from the meticulous Malcolm Rees-Francis, it's exquisite.

CHEESE WITH THAT? ENGLISH STILTON

There are a gobsmacking 1 million Stilton cheeses made every year. Ours come from England's Colston Basset & District Dairy Ltd, which started in 1913 and was constructed specifically to make Stilton cheese. Superb with a glass of sherry, it is also delightful with Riesling. Stilton does very well with a fruitier wine too, which is why we've popped it here on the Pinot page. Works best with a fruity New Zealand style of Pinot Noir; with the earthier French styles, it is less successful.

There aren't many things more satisfying than sitting down late in the day after a sumptuous repast and kicking back with a slow sipper, watching the world turn and languidly experiencing the multitude of subtle nuances advancing the ambience of the occasion. Below, we cover a number of the available options, from the glowingly ambrosial sticky to the silkily sophisticated cognac.

AFTER Dinner DELIGHTS

DESSERT WINES

The gloriously lush, sweet, viscous 'noble' wines might have never occurred if some bunches of grapes hadn't inadvertently been left on the vines for too long by somebody obviously behind in their work.

The particular fungus in question has proved to be exceptionally beneficial; its technical name is botrytis cinerea, or noble rot, and under the right conditions it sucks the water out of very ripe grapes, in the process concentrating their natural sugars.

The concentrating effect of noble rot produces much less juice, so huge quantities of fruit are needed to produce small amounts of wine. These styles are painstakingly slow and expensive to execute, but the resulting wines with their honeyed characters are worth the effort.

Botrytised wines are best served slightly chilled, and as a general rule they should be sweeter than the accompanying dessert.

FORTIFIED WINES

The distinctive stylings of port and sherry offer a wide variety of possibilities; in their genuine forms, they are superb for cooking and baking, or to sip on before, during or after a meal. They are, in fact, indispensable for the festive season given the warm, complex array of aromas, textures and flavours they bring to the table. Both Valdespino and Quinta de la Rosa possess massive reps, based not just on the quality of their wines, but also on the amount of time they've been at it, Valdespino having now practised their craft for a staggering 582 years.

ARMAGNAC & COGNAC

Cognac and Armagnac are brandies, but not every brandy is Cognac or Armagnac. Only those produced, under strict regulation, within the French appellation d'origine contrôlée regions of Cognac or Armagnac are entitled to the designation. As elsewhere, France's AOC regulations apply to every aspect of production, including the varieties used, the methods of distillation and the procedures for aging. Combine these factors with the unique terroir associated with the regions themselves and the hard-won blending skills accumulated over generations, and you have the makings of a sumptuous post-prandial experience that will slowly unfold before you with every sip. Very fine they are, too, with a nibble of dark chocolate.
