CA DEL' BAIO

Italy has always held its own special place in Glengarry's fluttering vinous heart. Our love affair with the home of artists, gladiators, sinking cities and pizza goes back to the dawn of time when the first Glengarry store was just a cave in a hill, and we've been importing beautifully designed Italian gems to titillate New Zealand's tastebuds ever since.

Italians do the quality to value ratio extremely well. They are also fiercely proud of their regional fare, and tend to eat and drink the stuff made just down the road. Thus a proud proliferation of vinos based on indigenous varieties can be found throughout the Italian wine portfolio. The Italians are old hands at la dolce vita, and their vinos are just as brilliant as ever. We source our imports from the length and breadth of Italy, ticking off the top wine-producing regions, benchmark producers and whatever new up-and-coming gems we can uncover. From everyday tasty tipples to the serious top-end titans, Italy really does have something for everybody.

ITALY

TOSCANA

Along with Piemonte, Tuscany has the highest percentage of top-tier DOCG wines, and is home to the scarlet giants Chianti, Brunello di Montalcino and Vino Nobile di Montepulciano. It is here that the new meets the old head-on, giving rise to the so-called Super Tuscans. The region's premier variety is Sangiovese, which used to make the ubiquitous Chianti, with the variety's greatest expression derived from the legendary Brunello clone developed by Montalcino's Biondi-Santi family.

PIEMONTE

Piemonte produces some of Italy's most long-lived wines. A treasure trove of culinary delights, it is home to Barolo, Barbaresco, truffles and hazelnuts. The predominant red grapes are the indigenous Nebbiolo, Barbera and Dolcetto, the whites, Arneis and Moscato. The wines are distinctly regional and oozing with flair. Lovers of Pinot Noir will feel right at home with Nebbiolo, which is bottled in its own right as well as being the variety behind the famed Barolo wines.

CA' DEL BAIO

The Ca' del Baio vineyards are located in the villages of Treiso and Barbaresco, with both in the designated zone for Barbaresco production. Like it's famous neighbour, Barolo, Barbaresco makes wine from the Nebbiolo grape. Established in 1870 by Giuseppe Grasso, Ca' del Baio remains a family enterprise, now under the stewardship of Giuseppe's great-grandson, Giulio. Among their range of Barolos is the prized cru of Asili. Ca' del Baio manage their vineyards and winery sustainably, undertaking minimum intervention and using as little sulphur in the winery as possible, the wines vinified with natural yeasts.

SPARKLING

METHODE MARLBOROUGH

Methodo Marlborough is a society that has set out to establish a gold-plated standard for the Marlborough sparkling wine industry, by identifying those wines made in the traditional way, to a set of criteria that meet the required quality level. For a wine to fit under the Methodo Marlborough umbrella, the fruit must fall within the designated varieties of Pinot Noir, Chardonnay and Pinot Meunier, and must have been sourced from the Marlborough region; the second fermentation is required to have been done in the bottle, with the wine riddled and disgorged. The minimum time on lees before disgorging is 18 months, as it is only after this point that the autolysis characters from time with the lees are developed, along with an appropriate finesse to the bead. If you're searching for a top-quality New Zealand sparkling wine, this is where you'll find it.

QUARTZ REEF

AN AUSTRIAN A-GAME

Named for NZ's largest quartz deposit lying beneath it, the Quartz Reef winery is the vision of Austrian-born Rudi Bauer, a qualified viticulturist and gifted winemaker with an outstanding track record. Rudi is on a mission, seemingly for life, to make wines that exhibit 'a symphony of flavours that capture attention and entertain so that you forget everything else'. His Pinot Noir is world-class, and his superb méthodes champion brilliantly the potential of our southernmost regions for sparkling wine, produced as they are entirely from his own estate-grown fruit, in the style of France's Grower champagnes.

Rudi is an ardent advocate of biodynamics, and Quartz Reef's two 15-hectare Bendigo vineyards are strictly maintained using the principles developed by fellow Austrian, Rudolf Steiner. The management regime of the BioGro-certified organic, Demeter-certified biodynamic vineyards is arduous and time consuming, but the resulting wines speak for themselves, with the entire portfolio produced in-house under Rudi's watchful eye.

Known for being direct and to the point, Rudi Bauer is a man who won't settle for second-best. His consummate creations bear testament to that philosophy.

STYLE IT AMARONE

CHANNELLING ITALIAN PANACHE

The quintessentially Italian red wine style that is Amarone derives its unique character from the drying of the grapes prior to fermentation, known as appassimento. This drying period can take months, with the sugars and flavours becoming increasingly concentrated as the grapes shrivel, resulting in rich, vibrant, complex and elegant expressions. This method has inspired winemakers in other parts of the world to apply the technique to their own endeavours. Check them out.

NOVUM

NEW TO OUR STORES

The vision-in-motion of William Hoare and Rachel Jackson-Hoare, Novum works on the premise that great wine comes from great fruit, and that one will generally find that fruit within a small pocket on a good vineyard. It is their mission in life to pinpoint those pockets and extract said fruit, then set about crafting their high-end wines, complete with the newly developed Amorim ND Tech corks (no cork taint) and waxed caps, just to underline how seriously they're taking this venture. For William and Rachel it's all about low intervention and high expectations.

WELLINGTON WINE COUNTRY

Terroir. Appellations. Key terms in the world of French vinification, established centuries ago, where the defined provenance of a particular area can be more important to the Gallic approach than anything else. In NZ we're only just catching up to something the French have long understood: that it is prudent to protect your prime viticultural assets.

In 2016 the Geographical Indications (Wine and Spirits) Registration Amendment Bill was passed into law here. It set out to define our pivotal winemaking areas and protect them (We can see the French rolling their eyes from here about how, in 2018, we are only just prescribing the area in which something labelled 'Marlborough' can be produced).

The Geographical Indicators that were established near our capital, Martinborough GI and Gladstone GI, reside there alongside Masterton. Only a tiny part of the total volume of wine made in NZ comes from these combined areas (currently around 1.3%), but as the likes of France, Italy or Spain will tell you, small can stand tall. This is a part of New Zealand that is generally made up of family-owned wineries with low production volumes. It is a region, however, that over-delivers in quality, generating a reputation for itself that far exceeds its numerical contribution.

Via this collective approach, the area now known as Wellington Wine Country delivers a unique and exciting array of quality vinous offerings. With the world's 'coolest little capital' just an hour's drive away, inserting 'Wellington' into the name was always going to be a good idea. This is a brilliant and overdue move, we reckon; so much so, we've decided to create a permanent home for these impressive wines, starting with our Wellington stores, and through the month of September we'd love to see you in here as we explore and elevate the wines from Wellington Wine Country under their auspicious new banner.
