Keeping Your April Cool

What a month this turned into. None of us are quite where we thought we'd be, but hopefully all of us are where we ought to be: hunkered down safe and with the ones we love. Our thoughts are with the community of health workers and others, for whom there is no hunkering down as they go about their daily task of endeavouring to keep us all safe and well.

These kinds of times often bring out the best in us as a nation, so while you're taking care of whichever people you need to, of whatever business you have to, spare a thought for those of us who might be a little less fortunate, less encased in a protective net. They're out there, and they might be just down the road. It doesn't hurt to check on them.

Putting aside for the moment all the negatives, this is a unique window; for many of us it's a chance to take a breath and take stock. Besides getting some of those jobs done around the property that you never thought you'd find the time to fit in, it's also a good opportunity to connect with the people you haven't spoken to for ages. It's almost a given that they'll have plenty of time for a catch-up.

Anyway, we're still here, doing what we do, albeit in a somewhat stripped-down capacity. We are delivering though, so have a read of the stories we've put together and get in touch with an order. We'll get it to you.

Be safe. Keep your chins up. Keep your cool.

Easter Treat: Cocktails at Home

Yes, we know you're already sweet as a Cadbury Button; but with everybody under 120cm chomping down on chocolate this month, perhaps you could indulge yourself just a little in a slightly more adult way. We've made you a kit.

Cabernet & Friends

Good Value & Great Drinking From Around the Globe

The world's most famous red grape, Cabernet Sauvignon can produce truly serious wines capable of aging in sublime and subtle splendour. At the heart of some of the most renowned red wines ever produced, the variety has an interesting ancestral pedigree; in the 17th century, somewhere in south-western France, a chance crossing occurred between two plants, a red Cabernet Franc and a white Sauvignon Blanc. Upon its discovery, the new varietal was eagerly adopted by producers seeking durable, relatively easy-to-grow vines.

The low-yielding, late-ripening Cabernet Sauvignon grapes have thick skins and a high tannin structure, meaning that the wine can evolve in the bottle, sometimes for decades. The variety responds particularly well to oak, manifesting in heightened levels of aroma and flavour.

Bordeaux winemakers began blending Cabernet Sauvignon with Merlot, Cabernet Franc, Malbec and other locally-grown varieties, the region evolving to become one of the world's most highly coveted brands.

Estates in almost every wine producing region in the world have enthusiastically adopted Cabernet Sauvignon and its varietal partners. Outside Bordeaux, Cabernet Sauvignon is produced both as blended and single varietal styles. Dry in nature, exuding notes of cedar and cassis and exhibiting rich and often complex dark fruit characters, the wines can range from fruity and succulent to weighty and brooding.

RENACER ARGENTINA
90644 PUNTO FINAL CABERNET SAUVIGNON
$15.99 CASE OF 6 $14.99 A BOTTLE

Fruit is 100% off the Renacer estate. One sniff, and you know you're definitely dealing with a singularly varietal Cabernet. A 10% introduction of Cabernet Franc to the blend contributes a delightful lift to the aromatics and emphasises the fresh plum and cherry flavours.

CHÂTEAU NICOT FRANCE
41620 BORDEAUX 2016
$16.99 CASE OF 6 $15.99 A BOTTLE

A Cabernet-dominant blend off an estate that has been in family hands for over two centuries. Mineral-edged aromas of blackcurrant and raspberry embellish the supple and rounded palate of intense plummy flavours. Traditional Bordeaux with a great price tag.

CHÂTEAU AIMÉE FRANCE
42510 MÉDOC 2014
$17.99 CASE OF 6 $16.99 A BOTTLE

It's a delight to find a Bordeaux at this price that is so good. Merlot-dominant, the nose is on the shy side, however the palate makes up for it with an abundance of generous red fruit flavours.

ERRÁZURIZ CHILE
90491 ESTATE CABERNET SAUVIGNON 2018
$17.99 CASE OF 6 $16.99 A BOTTLE

The Errázuriz property in Chile's Aconcagua Valley is a spectacular marriage of history and technology. Spicy aromatics of red and black fruits offer notes of vanilla, clove, cherry and plum on a soft, dry, full-bodied palate with fine, fleshy tannins and refreshing acidity.

BROOKFIELDS HAWKES BAY
13449 OHITI ESTATE CABERNET SAUVIGNON 2018
$17.99 CASE OF 6 $16.99 A BOTTLE

One of the few Kiwi 100% Cabernet Sauvignons around, the Ohiti exudes a dark, smoky aromatic air. Hints of cassis and liquorice are underpinned by spritely acidity and gentle, persistent tannins.

CHÂTEAU HAUT-COULOUMEY FRANCE
41135 MÉDOC 2016
$22.99 CASE OF 6 $21.99 A BOTTLE

Four hectares of vineyard in one of the oldest terroirs in Bordeaux. There is Cabernet in the blend, but Merlot is to the fore. Earthy on the nose, with plum, currant and a touch of cinnamon and oak on the palate, this is a freshly elegant Médoc that's good drinking right now.

ROCKBURN STOLEN KISS ROSÉ 2019

Rockburn got on the rosé bus relatively early, and have steadily built quite the fanbase for their sensual pink offering, with its lush, creamy strawberry and toffee apple notes and delicate cherry and crème-brûlée perfume.

ROCKBURN PINOT GRIS 2018

Ripe peach, nectarine and Nashi pear aromatics introduce a vibrantly fruity, off-dry palate with a long and zesty finish. A versatile food match that'll suit both rich and light seafood dishes and most Asian-spiced cuisine.

ROCKBURN PINOT NOIR 2018

Rockburn's minimal handling approach delivers a pure Central Otago expression: an expressive nose and deeply-fruited palate displaying vibrant notes of succulent cherry, rich mocha and silky tannins, signing off with a very long finish.

ROCKBURN THE ART PINOT NOIR 2016

Rockburn's resident maestro, Malcolm Rees-Francis, is let loose to practise his artistry on pristine fruit from a single vineyard on the slopes of Bannockburn. Superbly spicy and textural, an exquisite minerality, brilliantly ripe flavours.

Rockburn

Rugged Luminary of the South

One of Central Otago's star wineries, Rockburn began life as a three-hectare hobby vineyard at Lake Hayes, established by cardiothoracic surgeon Dick Bunton. Some sort of obsession definitely took root, with Dick planting a further 10 hectares in Gibbston a year later, followed by the 33-hectare Packburn vineyard in Pisa in 1996. The winery formerly known as Lake Hayes was rebranded as Rockburn, an evocation of the extreme, unrelenting terroir of the vineyards.

In 2005, Malcolm Rees-Francis, previously the assistant winemaker at Felton Road, signed on as as Head Winemaker. He has added to the winery's enviable reputation, amassing an impressive catalogue of top-ranked global awards. While winemaking excellence is Rockburn's raison d'être, it has been matched by astute management. After leasing premises for ten years, Rockburn's partners Dick Bunton, Chris James and Paul Halford purchased an existing winery building in Cromwell. Following an extensive re-fit and upgrade, the first vintage at the new winery was completed in 2016. The sophisticated technology allows Malcolm to treat the fruit with gentleness and subtlety, the minimal interference in the winemaking process encouraging its varietal qualities and terroir to find their purest expression.

Vegan

wine clarified!

Vegan is a pretty common term these days, so most of us are aware that the vegan diet accommodates no animal products whatsoever. The reason not all wines are vegan- or vegetarian-friendly is down to the way a wine is clarified – that is to say, made clear and bright – via a process known as ‘fining’. Young wines naturally contain proteins, tartrates, tannins and phenolics. These are in no way harmful, and most wines will eventually self-clarify. The main reason wines are fined in the first place is because we wine drinkers don’t generally like a glass of something that’s hazy or cloudy. To hasten the clarifying process, many winemakers use fining agents. The most common of these are casein (milk protein), albumen (egg white), gelatin (animal protein) and isinglass (fish bladder protein). Some winemakers are now opting for animal-friendly alternatives such as carbon, bentonite clay, limestone, kaolin clay, plant casein or silica gel. For those who are interested, labels are increasingly becoming more specific about the fining and filtering agents used. And then there are those who undertake no fining at all and offer their wines unfiltered.

Chapel Hill

Harnessing the Majestic McLaren Vale

CHAPEL HILL THE PARSON SHIRAZ 2018

Possesses an elegance and balance that well exceeds its price tag, achieved by not overly oakening the wine. A perfumed cloud of blueberries dusted with spice envelops a richly-flavoured mouth of plum, chocolate, aniseed, liquorice, gentle oak and fine tannins.

CHAPEL HILL THE PARSON GSM 2018

The Chapel Hill crew habitually dish out this sort of impressive quality at bargain prices. The 61% Grenache, 34% Shiraz, 5% Mourvèdre Parson artfully forges the classic Rhône and McLaren Vale varietals with a focus on savouriness and texture. Smooth and silky.

CHAPEL HILL BUSH VINE GRENACHE 2016

From Chapel Hill's McLaren Range, this is crafted from the region's unsung hero, Grenache and sourced from old, low-yielding bush vines that produce small berries, thick skins and open bunches. Bright fruit flavours and an invigorating rustic, savoury texture.

Perched on the rolling hillsides where South Australia's McLaren Vale wine region meets the shores of Gulf St Vincent is Chapel Hill. The winery's name is derived from the historic 1865 ironstone chapel and schoolhouse that served the area for 100 years. Boarded up and in disrepair, the building and surrounding land was purchased in the early 1970s by Adelaide Professor, Thomas Nelson. He released the first vintage in 1975 and worked tirelessly to restore and elegantly convert the old chapel to serve as cellar door and tasting room.

Chapel Hill's remarkable run of success is due in no small part to the immense contribution of the superbly talented team lead by CEO and chief winemaker, Michael Fragos and winemaker Bryn Richards. The wines are produced from sustainably managed estate vineyards supplemented by fruit sourced from like-minded growers, with minimal interference and no use of additives.

The white wines are made exclusively from free-run juice (i.e. the juice released from freshly-picked grapes during the destemming and crushing process, prior to pressing), which is allowed to clarify naturally to retain aromatics and freshness. Following fermentation, the red wines are matured in French oak barrels for 12 to 29 months and bottled without fining or filtration. The Chapel Hill offerings are excellent; beautifully balanced expressions displaying a superb sense of their unique terroir and exceptional varietal purity.

Cecchi

Steeped in Chianti's History

CECCHI

LA CAMPANA MONTEFALCO ROSSO DOC

From the family-owned vineyards in Umbria, promoting the region's distinctive terroir. A blend of Sangiovese, Sagrantino and Merlot, it's juicy and fruity with plenty of character and ripe plum and cherry on the nose.

LA CAMPANA MONTEFALCO SAGRANTINO DOCG

100% Sagrantino, the indigenous variety of this DOCG. Earthy and exotic, this had 16 months in barriques and at least eight in bottle. Intense nose, wonderful complexity, the broad palate balanced by integrated tannins.

COEVO TOSCANA IGT

One of the Super Tuscans, this sits atop the Cecchi range, with Cabernet and Merlot added to Sangiovese. Balanced between the tannic maturity of Sangiovese and the aromatics of Merlot, enveloped in the dark fruits of Cabernet Sauvignon. Lends itself to lengthy aging.

The Cecchi family have been involving themselves with all things vinous since 1893, when ancestor Luigi first took a job as a wine taster. They currently own a total of 300ha spread across four different areas in central Italy, with their home-base nestled in among the Chianti vines in the heart of Tuscany, home to the Sangiovese grape. Special care is taken at Cecchi to protect the land and preserve the characters of the vineyards, a quality that shines through in all the wines they make. At the helm are the fourth generation in the family business, brothers Andrea and Cesare.

The Cecchi winery is situated in Castellino, one of the four municipalities that sit within the historical Gallo Nero (Black Rooster) Chianti Classico area. Official symbol of the area since the 1930s, the origins of the Black Rooster are thought to date back to the 14th century in Florence. There is a strong bond between the Cecchis and their company, that passion fostering a strong sense of continuity and a desire to constantly improve the portfolio.

For the first time, we have in stock Coevo, Cecchi's Super Tuscan, so-called as it sits outside the legal requirements for the zone, blending varieties traditionally at home in Bordeaux with those of the Chianti region. We have, as well, Cecchi's new La Campana wines, derived from vineyards in Umbria that they have been tending for the last 10 years. Cecchi's Castello Montaùto label is named for the castle that sits atop a ridge across the valley from San Gimignano, home to the white variety Vernaccia. Some of the family live there, and under this label they produce a Vernaccia and a Chianti. The over-delivering Villa Cerna wines come from the original Cecchi family vineyards that surround the main winery.

Rhône Valley

Land of Glorious Blends & Sensuous Syrahs

Along with Bordeaux, the Rhône is France's most important source of AOC, or appellation d'origine contrôlée, wines. The area divides into two distinct sub-regions, the northern Rhône and southern Rhône, the pair quite different geologically, climatically and viticulturally. In the north's prestigious appellations of Côte-Rôtie, Hermitage, Saint-Joseph, Cornas and Crozes-Hermitage, its famous red wines are produced almost exclusively from Syrah. The region also produces small quantities of white wine using the Viognier, Marsanne and Roussanne varieties.

The Grenache-dominated south, with its countless terroirs and micro-climates, produces a great diversity of red, white and rosé wines. These include the red AOC wines of Vacqueyras, Gigondas, Vinsobres, Tavel, Lirac and the legendary Châteauneuf-du-Pape. Wines from the top producers are usually blends consisting of Grenache partnered with Syrah and Mourvèdre, sometimes including Carignan or Cinsault. A specialty of the region is from the AOC Beaumes de Venise, a distinctive fortified wine produced from the Muscat grape.

By far the most plentiful wines of the entire Rhône region are the Côtes-du-Rhône expressions. Theoretically these can be blended from up to 21 varieties, but AOC regulations stipulate that wines must consist of at least 40% Grenache and minimum levels of Syrah and Mourvèdre. The best of these – particularly those from individual domaines and quality-oriented négociants – offer superb value.

Chapel Down

Taking England to the Sparkling Aficionados

CHAPEL DOWN BRUT NV

A great example of a classic English sparkling wine, Chapel Down's elegant non-vintage boasts aromas of apple, lemongrass and freshly-baked bread, with hints of strawberry and quince on the palate and a stream of fine, persistent bubbles.

CHAPEL DOWN ROSÉ BRUT NV

A delicate rosé non-vintage displaying aromas of ripe strawberries and raspberries, with background notes of toasty shortbread. The palate is focused and pure, its fine mousse contributing to the crisp and fresh style.

Chapel Down is a very large UK drinks company ticking many beverage boxes, from sparkling wine to spirits to beers. As well as being on the larger side, they excel in terms of quality, their heritage intrinsically linked with England's now flourishing sparkling wine industry. English wine production only really took off in the 1980s; the 30 years prior generally belonged to individuals with no real skill, who thought vineyard life would make a good retirement project. Enter Stephen Skelton MW in the late 1970s, who spent a couple of influential years in Germany establishing a vineyard at Tenterden in Kent before completing 22 consecutive vintages there. The Skelton Vineyard is now owned by Chapel Down.

Established in 1992, Chapel Down moved to Tenterden in 1995, to the site of Stephen Skelton's vineyard, where they took over both vineyard and winery. A merger in 2000 saw them increase markedly in size, employing a mix of vineyard ownership and long term contracts with thirteen different growers. The crown jewel in their holdings is Kit's Coty, a very special chalk-based vineyard in the North Downs in the south-east of England. For many years the official wine of the annual Oxford and Cambridge boat race was Bollinger. It's now Chapel Down. They are also the official wine of the Royal Ascot. Chapel Down's sparkling rosé was poured at the weddings of William and Kate, and Harry and Meghan.

Having spent last year scouring the southern coast of England in search of the best, we're very pleased to have Chapel Down's wines and spirits now sitting comfortably on our shelves alongside the equally eminent English producers, Gusbourne.

EuroWhites

These Europeans Are off the Beaten Track and Deliciously Different

There is a vast array of grape varieties to be found beyond the standard Sauvignon Blanc, Chardonnay, Merlot, Cabernet Sauvignon, et al. While we have an impressive enough selection in NZ, Europe, with its myriad nations and lengthy histories, boasts a prodigious collection of grape varieties that dwarfs our own. Many are indigenous to their country or region. European whites are often produced in a less aromatic, fruit-forward style than our own, frequently providing the benchmark that those in the New World aspire to.

Wildwood Deep Creek's Barrel-aged Sours

Wild fermented beer has exploded in popularity as of late, and it seems as though every brewer is about to release a wild fermented beer range. What is wild fermentation? First of all, this is not a new concept. When beer was initially created, yeast simply living in the surrounding environment is what helped make beer what it is. A wild fermented beer now is produced much in the same way, with yeast strains and wild microbes in the surrounding environment present in the brewing process, yielding an unexpected spontaneous fermented beer. These wild yeasts and microbes produce some familiar flavour profiles we know; funk, spice, farmhouse barnyard and sourness.

Deep Creek Brewery launched their Wildwood series last year and have won some major awards in the process, including the trophy for Champion NZ Beer at the 2019 NZ Beer Awards for their 2019 vintage of Wildwood Diep Kriek. The team at Deep Creek love this style of wild fermented beer, so they decided to give it a crack themselves. Using the Solera method, they've created a few beers in this series and are only just getting started. Solera is a Lambic style beer, untouched by wood. The 2019 vintage is a golden sour ale, aged for 15 months in tank. Roeselare is a Flanders Red style beer that has distinct notes of black cherry, red currants and a hint of mild vanilla. More of these to come. | MR

Wemyss & Kingsbarns

Wemyss is an independent bottling whisky company that has been in operation since 2005, though the Wemyss family have roots in the whisky industry dating back to the 19th Century, when John Haig built what is now the largest spirit producing distillery in Europe on Wemyss land.

In 2013, the Wemyss family announced they would begin construction on a new distillery in Fife to be named Kingsbarns Distillery. Located in the Lowland region of Scotland, Fife has long been a region known for creating light whisky – light in style, light in just about everything. Kingsbarns are part of a new wave of distilleries looking to change this perception.

Delving into the region's history, distilleries were making a wide array of styles, so the perception seems unfounded. The finger can likely be pointed at a certain infamous triple distillation leading the revival of whisky in the area at a time when the marketing of things like whisky was becoming a bit more widespread. The Lowland region is now a hotbed for new distilleries, with some young first releases very sought after.

The first release to come from Kingsbarns is the Dream to Dram Single Malt. It's made using locally harvested barley and bottled as a 3-year-old at 46% ABV, matured in 90% ex-bourbon barrels with the remainder in STR barriques (STR meaning a wine barrique that has been shaved, toasted and re-charred to expose the whisky to new oak and to maximize flavour – a process developed by the late Dr Jim Swan).

On the nose, this bottle has classic 'new make' characters of banana and pineapple syrup with a touch of wild berry and fresh-cut grass. The palate is light, with similar fruity and floral notes leading into a toffee and custard tart finish. For a whisky that is clearly in its youth, this is drinking superbly with a promise of things to come. What was once a rarity, this new fad of releasing progress report bottlings, is clearly working for the likes of Kingsbarns, Daftmill, Kilchoman and our own Cardrona Distillery, with fans able to get involved from the ground level. | AS

Grappa

Like many other European spirits, grappa was for a long time referred to by the Latin name aqua vitae, the water of life. Translated almost directly into Italian as 'acquavite,' it was in fact known by this name right up until the late 19th Century. At this point the modern (but no less vague, as it translates to 'bunch of grapes') term of grappa entered common usage.

What is it? Often confused with brandy, grappa is not actually distilled from wine, but from a distillate made from grape pomace (stems, stalks, skins and seeds left over from wine production). This pomace is combined with alcohol and then heated. The mixture separates, leaving behind a concentrated and potent spirit that can then be aged or bottled.

For decades, the spirit was made from a combination of grape varieties, but this process began to change in the 1960s, and as a result, so too did the character of grappa and its popularity. Giannola Nonino, whose distillery in Percoto had been making grappa since 1897, had an idea. Giannola wished to make a fine spirit to rival any of France's eaux-de-vie, and saw that perhaps the best way to do this was to produce grappa from a single grape variety. Referring to this particular style as 'monovitigno,' Nonino went on a crusade to champion the story and quality of grappa.

The idea caught on, and these days it is the standard for high-quality grappa, with many popular styles made in Piemonte using the famous local varieties, Nebbiolo and Arneis.

Grappa is traditionally served following dinner as a digestive to especially aid with a heavy meal. The liquid is usually clear since it is not often seasoned in wood, but recently barrel-aged grappa have become more common. Like a whisky, these will show colouration from their time in oak. A common trick to test the quality of grappa is to rub a small amount onto the back of your hand and smell it. If the aroma is fresh and attractive the grappa has been made with care, whereas if the liquid is oily or has a smell referred to as 'pet shop,' this denotes a cheap, poor quality spirit. | DL

The Glengarry Case Club

It's All About Quality and Range

Using the knowledge, experience and connections we've developed over more than seven decades, we select the best wines, beers and spirits possible for the best value.

Choose the Case That's Right for You

You can view your case before it is sent, with the option of changing something out.

Easy Delivery

Regular delivery is at times tailored to suit you, with freight included on all deliveries.

Cancel Anytime

Our quality assurance means that you can return the selection, no questions asked. You can skip a month, or cancel at any time before your case ships. You can take a break from your case plan at any stage. It's quick and easy to manage from your online profile page.

Gift a Glengarry Case Club Subscription

Choose the case club subscription packages that you want your gift voucher to cover. When the lucky recipient of your gift voucher redeems it, we'll confirm their contact and delivery details to start them on their subscription.
